SAN DIEGO, CA—September 16, 2008—HME made an appearance at the 2008 MTV Video Music Awards by supplying wireless intercom systems for the primary stage managers at all 3 locations being used at Paramount Studios.

There was one glaring need when selecting a wireless intercom system for the MTV VMA's: the amount of space that would need to be covered at Paramount Studios. The VMA's were held at 3 major locations—including the B-Tank, the back lot also known as New York Street, and Stage 16, which altogether spanned approximately five acres.

The HME wireless intercom systems were able to cover these areas flawlessly. There were 12 HME PRO850 systems being used with 48 people on headsets. With the PRO850's flexible features, the base stations were able to be linked to share common circuits, allowing MTV's stage management team to stay in contact with each other throughout the show, despite the distance.

"We are proud to supply a system that is versatile for any and every occasion, no matter the obstacles," stated John Arenas, General Manager of ATK Versacom.
